RUSSIAN MATRIMONIAL SLAVERY

As a daughter the Russian woman is under the absolute sway of her parents. Her coming of age makes no alteration in her position. Until the day of her death, if she remains unmarried, the place she occupies in the family life is a place of dependence upon the will of her parents. When a woman marries, she changes the authority of parents for the no less unqualified authority of husband. As the Russian statute suggestively puts it, "One person can not reasonably be expected to fully satisfy two such unlimited powers as that of husband and parent." The "unlimited" power of the parent therefore is withdrawn, and that of the husband substituted. She can not leave him even to visit a neighboring town without a "pass" from him. He names the time she is permitted to stay; and at the expiry of the term she is bound to return, or get it renewed. A husband may appear in a court of law as a witness against his wife, but a wife is not permitted to appear against her husband. A woman's evidence is regarded also as of less weight than that of a man. "When two witnesses do not agree," the code runs, "the testimony of an adult outweighs that of a child, and the testimony of a man that of a woman."

According to the tenets of the Russian church, marriage is a sacrament, and is theoretically indissoluble. There is no such thing as a civil marriage, and divorce, except in one case, is practically unobtainable by a woman. The exception is the deprivation of civil rights and banishment of the husband. If the wife choose she can follow her husband into exile; and Russian literature is full of pathetic stories of women, tenderly nurtured, braving the terrors of the long Siberian march. All children, however, born in exile are regarded as belonging to the lowest class of society. If, on the other hand, the wife seeks, on the plea of her husband's banishment, divorce, the church in this case relaxes her discipline, and grants the plea. Although the statute recognizes adultery and desertion on the part of the husband as grounds for divorce, the law is beset with such difficulties that it is never resorted to except by the wealthy, who can always make the tardy wheels revolve swiftly.

While divorce is difficult to obtain, there are other means resorted to which reach the same destination, only by a different route. Laws in Russia, are made not to be broken, but to be evaded, and both the civil and ecclesiastical authorities have learned the art of evasion to perfection. Marriages may be annulled if any informality has occurred in them, and if parties are willing, the rest is only a question of money. In some parts of the empire the marriage service is enacted with this contingency in view. The certificate may be left unnoted, or the age of the contracting parties omitted. In some parts of Little Russia, a relative, during the ceremony, gives the bride a slap, to prove in case of need that she has married under compulsion. Women who succeed in obtaining a separation from their husbands on the ground of informality are received into society, are allowed to marry again, and may even be separated again without loss of position. There is, however, a more healthy public spirit arising, which tends strongly in favor of an adjustment of the present laws.

Secretary of War Root is to join the fashionable colony in upper Park avenue, New York. He has purchased two lots at Nos. 199 and 102 East Seventy-first street, as a site for a $150,000 residence. The buildings now occupying the site will be torn down.

WILL DECISION STAND

established the majority decision. Chief Justice Fuller and Associate Justices Harlan, Peckham and Brewer dissented.

The dissent was of remarkable force and power, and has commended itself certainly to the lay mind, and I think also the professional mind. "Before this the court had decided that in the territories of the United States, upon this continent, and also within the District of Columbia, the guarantees of the Constitution are in full force, and that their operation does not depend upon the will of Congress."

"As a consequence of the present decision, and of the previous so-called 'Insular Decisions', the possessions of the United States non-contiguous, are to be governed very much as the Crown Colonies of Great Britain are, or, in the language of Judge Harlan, as 'vassal States'."

"This policy is at war with the spirit and the traditions, and the language even, of our written Constitution. Power to make needful rules cannot include power to suspend the Constitution. Our system as conceived and established by the fathers of the republic, forbids the idea; and I think that our profession and the people at large, have hardly waked up to the condition of things in which we now find ourselves."

"Mr. Harlan, the eminent author of a history of the United States, in the fourth volume of his works, page 349, uses the following language: 'To the decision of an underlying question of constitutional law no finality attaches. To endure it must be right. An act of the legislature at variance with the Constitution is pronounced void; an opinion of the Supreme Court is equally so.'"

"This language is very strong, but is it not true? Is anything really settled until it is settled right? Is it not monstrous that anywhere, within our jurisdiction the Constitution of the United States should be held to be inoperative, at least with regard to its guarantees of life, liberty and property, except at the will of Congress?"

"The legal tender decision was deliberately reversed. This was practically the case as to the income tax. And in the Insular Decisions the majority reached a decision, not only on different but even on contradictory grounds. And it is highly probable that the doctrine of the majority in the Hawaii case will ultimately be abandoned."

WHY LAUKA OBJECTED

Editor Evening Bulletin:—I suppose it is good policy to discredit your political opponent in every way possible. But there are always two sides to a story, and knowing you to be fair, might say on my behalf in connection with the so-called protest against a meeting of this Precinct Club, that I took the view that having received my appointment as President from the members of the Republican Club, it was to them alone that I should tender my resignation. There was no thought on my part to obstruct the meeting in any way except that in my opinion it was somewhat irregular for the vice president to call an executive meeting, including myself, and proceed to fill a vacancy which I had not had the opportunity to resign or vacate. I take it that the Club alone can accept and declare an office vacant and not the four members of the executive who met and so decided.

I might draw your attention to the call of the Republican party executive in which it is stated that vacancies to the several Precinct Clubs were to be filled at the meeting of the 28th inst., and not at a prior date.

Yours respectfully,

C. P. LAUKA.

NOTICE.

In consequence of the death of the President, and the absence from the Territory of the First Vice-President, I hereby give notice that a meeting of the 7th Precinct Republican Club, of the Fifth District, is hereby called for Friday, August 28th, 1903, at 7:30 o'clock, at the Kalihl Detention Camp, for the purpose of filling vacancies in said precinct club and making nominations for the members of the County Committee to be voted for at a primary election to be held on Saturday, August 29th, 1903, from 2 o'clock p. m. to 8 o'clock p. m.

By order
E. C. WINSTON,
Second Vice-President.

WHAT THE FACTS WERE

Editor Evening Bulletin:—The Advertiser reports this morning that at a meeting last night of the Republican Precinct Club of the Second Precinct of the Fourth District, dissatisfaction was expressed at the action of the Republican Central Committee in fixing the primaries the day after the nominations, and that in the course of the discussion, Mr. J. A. Gilman, a member of said committee, declared that it was "a scheme of a Fifth District politician."

Now, if Mr. Gilman is correctly reported, it is another illustration of the unfairness with which my political opponents treat me. He was present at a meeting of his committee and knows that the plan I submitted provided for nominations August 28th, and primaries September 5th, and that the change was made on motion of Mr. Sam Johnson, of the Fourth District. I may say further, that Messrs. McCandless, Aylett, Lane, Holt and Winston know that I personally appealed to them to make changes in the dates as they were finally fixed, but Mr. Johnson wanted to take his military company to Hilo, and he had his way with the dates.

I am surprised that Mr. Gilman should depart from the facts to give me a dig.

England Wants No Criminal Immigrants

London, Aug. 12.—The report of the royal commission on alien immigration is issued today. It recommends that the immigration of certain classes of Aliens into the United Kingdom be subjected to state control and proposes a number of regulations and the establishment of a department of immigration. The specific recommendations made in the report are similar in many respects to the provisions of the United States immigration law, except that no educational requirement is proposed.

In some directions the regulations are more stringent than the American regulations. The "undesirable" classes stated in the report include prostitutes, lunatics, convicted criminals and any one who is in danger of becoming a public charge.

Provision is made for the deportation of immigrants who may be proved to be undesirable within two years of their landing, and the vessel importing them will be compelled to repatriate them without compensation. The proposed medical inspection is similar to that in the United States. The penalty for supplying false data to the immigration inspectors is deportation. The immigration department may specify certain overpopulated areas as prohibited territory for fresh immigrants. In the case of the conviction of an immigrant for felony or misdemeanor the Court may include deportation as part of the sentence.
